Mt. Shasta is the 2nd highest mountain in the Cascade Range, standing 11,500 ft. It is a stratovolcano, with four overlapping cones and is considered an active volcano. It is about 40 miles south of the Oregon-California border.